HAHNEMANN HOSPITAL, WITH MATERNITY WING.
View from Park Avenue and 68th Street.

The Hahnemann Hospital.

LOCATION

Is a first class Hospital located on Park avenue, between 67th and 68th streets, in a pleasant part of the city.

The Madison avenue electric cars pass one block west and the Lexington avenue cable cars one block east. Both lines connect by transfer with all parts of the city.

MAIN BUILDING

The main building comprised of four stories and basement fronts on Park avenue, the entrance being about midway between 67th and 68th streets. It has two annexes, one of these being a wing on the 68th street side, devoted to maternity cases and children. It has also a cottage on the 67th street side used for the Out Door Department. The Hospital has about sixty-six private rooms for pay patients and eight wards with the same number of beds.

FIRST FLOOR

On the first floor are the executive offices, library, reception rooms, room partly endowed for sick firemen and members of the fire patrol, room for policemen, ten private rooms for patients, two children's wards, the Good Samaritan room, nurses dining room linen closets, bath rooms and lavatories.

SECOND FLOOR

The second floor is largely devoted to private rooms for pay patients. Here is also the saleswomen's room, the national guardsmen's room, the Dey memorial room, the Powers memorial, the room furnished in memory of Mrs. Neilson Stout, the room furnished by Minnie Maddern Fiske, the Gladys Howell room devoted to pay patients, Ward F, for maternity cases, the nursery, the diet kitchen where the nurses are instructed in the duties of preparing delicacies for the sick. The superintendents and doctors dining room, the main store rooms for linens, a commodious pantry from which food is served to patients on that floor, several bath rooms and lavatories, as well as the delivery room.

THIRD FLOOR

The third floor contains three wards for women including both medical and surgical cases, ward G, for maternity cases, a number of private rooms for pay patients, examining room, nurses' parlor, commodious pantry, the urinary analysis room and all the requisite linen closets, bath rooms and lavatories.

FOURTH FLOOR

The fourth floor contains the male ward, a number of private rooms for pay patients and one of the most perfect scientific and thoroughly equipped aseptic operating room in all respects up to date in its adaptation to the requirements of modern surgery. The rooms devoted to this purpose are four in number, on the north side within a short distance from the elevator that carries the patients from the wards and rooms below to the operating room. These comprise the dressing room for the surgeons, a sterilizing room, the anesthetizing room and the operating room. They are connected by an interior hall shut off from the main hall, providing exclusiveness for those engaged in performing or assisting in the operation. Since the Hahnemann is devoted to private work where those who go there for an operation are not subjected to the observation of students, there is no amphitheatre.

OPERATING ROOM

The operating room itself is about thirty feet square. It is lighted in the day time by two large skylights securing the steady northern light and at night time by eighteen gas jets set under a powerful reflector which is placed immediately over the operating table. This table occupies the center of the room, around it are the stands, bowls, tables, glass jars and other necessary apparatus. Standing at the head of the table and to the left of the patient is a cylinder of oxygen, which is never absent from its place under any circumstances, ready for any and all emergencies. The tables, stands and all the other surgical furniture are of glass and iron, the latter painted white and kept scrupulously clean by the operating room nurses. It is supplied with five sets of marble basins extending nearly across one side of the room, irrigating stands, machine for filtering and sterilizing, both hot and cold water, instrument table, bandage table, sponge table, in fact all the requisite appliances for up to date aseptic surgery. The instruments when not in use are kept in an iron cabinet with glass shelves.

ANÆSTHETIZING ROOM

The anæsthetizing room contains no furniture except a couch with rubber tired castors, with detachable top arranged so that it can be used as a stretcher and a closet in which are kept the anæsthetizing apparatus and all the necessary restoratives. This apartment is separated from the operating room by a door. This door is never opened until the patient is under the influence of the anæsthetic, then opened and the patient wheeled in and placed on the operating table. By this arrangement the shock of seeing the instruments and the operating paraphernalia incident to the performance of an operation is avoided. Innumerable patients have been operated upon and cured who never saw the room in which the surgeon performed his art. As soon as the operation is concluded the patient is placed on a couch with tricycle wheels and wheeled on this to the adjacent recovery room or their private rooms where they are watched over and attended by trained nurses.

SURGEONS DRESSING ROOM

The surgeons' dressing room is across the private hall, is furnished with closets for their ordinary apparel which is there removed and sterilized clothes to be worn in the operating room substituted. On the walls hang the white suits and rubber aprons. Here is also a set of basins for the doctors. An odd piece of furniture, a glass jar about two feet in height filled with antiseptic wash into which the entire arm may be plunged and cleansed.

STERILIZING ROOM

On another side of the operating room connected by a door, is the sterilizing room in which are the latest sterilizing devices and ovens for the sterilizing of the instruments, the towels, linen bandages and clothing sent into operating room. This room completes the suite.

NURSES

On this story are the principal sleeping apartments of the nurses. In spite of all proper appointments of a hospital, and the skill of the surgeons, good nurses are requisite for the successful treatment of patients, and much depends on the nurses, skill for the recovery of the patients. It is with pride, pardonable we trust, that we point to a corps of nurses, unsurpassed for their cheerfulness of manner, earnestness of endeavor, obedience to duties and skill in application.

BASEMENT

In the basement is found a scrupulously clean kitchen, shining culinary utensils, the laundry with modern machinery, and servants' quarters. Just outside of the main building, attached to it is the engine and boiler room which supplies the steam for running the elevator and laundry, as well as supplying hot water for all portions of the hospital and steam for the radiators for heating the entire building.

SIMPLE FURNISHINGS

The rooms are all furnished with metallic bedsteads and plain but substantial furniture while all the rooms and halls are kept scrupulously clean.

Definite arrangements as to accommodations can be made by applying at the hospital and also as to rates. Free patients are cared for and as careful attention given them, as to the pay patients. The latter are admitted to wards at seven dollars per week, and in private rooms for ten to forty dollars per week including board and medicine.

Organization and Subsequent History.

The Hahnemann Hospital was the first homeopathic hospital organized in the city of New York. There were several homeopathic dispensaries, but no hospital where patients could be treated by homeopathic physicians. The necessity for such an institution was felt by all connected with that profession. Several conferences were held during the summer and fall of 1869, which finally resulted in the agreement to organize a hospital under the name of the Hahnemann Hospital of the City of New York. Articles of incorporation were prepared under the provisions of the law of 1848 for the incorporation of charitable and benevolent societies, and signed by Hiram Calkins, William Radde, F. Seeger, M. D., J. Robie Wood, M. D.; D. D. T. Marshall, H. C. Brown, B. F. Bowers, M. D., and Charles E. Blumenthal, M. D.

These articles were sworn to by H. C. Brown, Hiram Calkins, William Radde, F. Seeger, M. D., and D. D. T. Marshall, approved by Judge Cardozo, Justice of the Supreme Court, on the 8th of October, 1869, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, in Albany, on the 15th of that month.

The inaugural ceremonies were held in the Union League Theatre, in Twenty-sixth street, on December 4th, 1869, at which John F. Gray, M. D., presided, and addresses were delivered by William Cullen Bryant, Horace Greeley and George C. Barrett, then and still a Justice of the Supreme Court.

There was a provisional organization of the Trustees under the incorporation with Justice Barrett as chairman. This was continued until the latter part of December, when, at a meeting of the Board of Trustees, at the residence of J. Robie Wood, M. D., the organization of the Trustees was completed by the election of the following officers:

President, Hiram Calkins.

Vice-Presidents, Richard A. Storrs, D. D., T. Marshall and William Radde.

Treasurer, John Davidson.

Secretary, H. C. Brown

Medical Director, Ferdinand Seeger, M. D.

These officers were successively re-elected each year, and there were few changes in the Board of Trustees for over five years.

The other Trustees at that time were: Rev. R. N. Stratton, C. E. Blumenthal, M. D., R. B. Connelly, George C. Barrett, James K. Boyd, F. W. Hunt, M. D., Charles C. Pinckney, George Hoffman, L. Hallock, M. D., A. T. Briggs, B. F. Bowers, M. D., E. H. Kent and E. A. Loew.

Immediately after the incorporation funds were raised and rooms fitted up in the building 305 East Fifty-fifth street, occupied by the Northeastern Homeopathic Medical and Surgical Dispensary. Twelve beds were provided and the Hahnemann Hospital opened its doors the last of December, 1869, there received the first patient ever admitted to a homeopathic hospital in the city of New York. During the three succeeding years 639 patients were received aggregating 20,000 days of support in the institution. The demand for the admission of patients soon exceeded the accommodations. At the end of the first year the Board of Trustees leased the adjoining building and thus increased the number of beds.

Through the direct and personal efforts of Hiram Calkins, the President and Dr. Seeger, the Legislature of 1870 passed an act authorizing the lease to the Hahnemann Hospital of twelve lots on the east side of Fourth, now Park avenue, between 67th and 68th streets, on which the present hospital buildings were erected, on the same terms as lots had been leased to other charitable institutions by the city. This lease was subsequently executed by the city for the term of 99 years from December 31st, 1870.

During the summer of 1870, a Ladies' Association was organized in connection with the hospital with Mrs. R. B. Connelly as Honorary President; Mrs. C. E. Vanderveer, President; Vice Presidents, Mrs. Hiram Calkins, Mrs. Wm. P. Earle, Mrs. A. C. Bassford, Mrs. George Kellock and Mrs. E. M. Earle; Secretary, Mrs. R. C. Hutchings; Treasurer, Mrs. Richard A. Storrs.

In the following year Mrs. Cornelia Roosevelt, wife of Judge J. J. Roosevelt, was elected President of the association and Mrs. E. G. Bartlett Recording Secretary.

The Medical Board during that period consisted of F. W. Hunt, M. D.; B. F. Bowers, M. D.; F. Seeger, M. D.; L. Hallock, M. D.; C. E. Blumenthal, M. D.; R. Reisig, M. D.; and Wm. Tod Helmuth, surgeon.

SURGICAL HOSPITAL MERGED WITH HAHNEMANN.

The Legislature of 1872 passed an act incorporating the New York Homeopathic Surgical Hospital, which finally opened a hospital at 213 West 54th street, in June, 1874, over four years after the Hahnemann had opened its hospital. There were then two hospitals of that school and a divided interest. The maintenance of two hospitals, under separate management, it was thought, might prove burdensome and disadvantageous to the interests of each and injurious to the general cause of homeopathy. Efforts were made to unite the two institutions. With the hope and expectation that through a third organization this union might be brought about, a number of prominent citizens, not identified with either of the other corporations, met in the fall of 1874 and organized the New York Homeopathic Hospital for Women and Children, under the general law of 1848. They selected as their Board of Governors: William Orton, Henry G. Stebbins, William Astor, Wm. B. Ogden, Henry Hilton, Hiram Barney, William M. Kingsland, Jesse Hoyt, Chauncey M. Depew, Josiah M. Fiske, Josiah Macy, Jr.; Edmund Dwight, George Watts, William Libbey, John W. Bigelow, Charles P. Leverich, Parke Godwin, Alexander Holland, William L. Andrews, Walter S. Gurnee, John W. Barrow, Wheeler H. Peckham, George G. Lake, W. A. Ogden Hegeman.

This organization, which was simply one on paper, never attempted to open a hospital, but directed all its efforts to unite the Homeopaths in the support of one institution. After several conferences, committees from each of the organizations were appointed to see if an agreement to unite all interests could not be arranged. These committees met at the residence of Dr. Egbert Guernsey and after several conferences decided to report to their respective boards in favor of merging the other two organizations into the Hahnemann Hospital, and the transfer of all property, assets and interests to the Hahnemann, on the basis of the increase of the number of Trustees of the institution to twenty-four, eight to be taken from each of the three organizations, and all to be laymen.

This recommendation was made to the Boards in control of each of the three organizations by the members of the committee representing each. After considerable delay, each organization adopted that recommendation, and each Board selected the eight persons to represent it in the re-organized Hahnemann.

The Hahnemann selected as its members of the consolidated board, Hiram Calkins, Richard A. Storrs, James K. Averill, John Davidson, J. M. Bundy, William Radde, Charles C. Pinckney, E. H. Kent.

The New York Homeopathic Surgical Hospital selected Salem H. Wales, George W. Clarke, Spencer W. Coe, Alfred Mackay, Sinclair Tousey, Roger A. Lyon, William H. Wickham, Edmund Dwight,

The New York Homeopathic Hospital for Women and Children selected William Orton, Oliver H. Palmer, W. A. Ogden Hegeman, Henry Hilton, Charles P. Leverich, Charles Watrous, Josiah Macy, Jr., John W. Barrow.

A committee of three was selected to prepare the act of consolidation, which was, after its preparation, submitted to each of the three organizations separately and approved by each. It was then taken charge of by Hiram Calkins, President of the Hahnemann, and by him taken to Albany, and its passage by the Legislature secured without any modification, and is known as Chapter 64 of the Laws of 1875.

The new Board of Trustees met at the Windsor Hotel on the evening of May 1st, 1875, and organized by the election of the following officers :

President, William Orton.

Vice-Presidents, Hiram Calkins, Sinclair Tousey.

Secretary, Roger H. Lyon.

Treasurer, Charles P. Leverich.

MEDICAL BOARD.

As soon as practical, a Medical Board was selected, consisting of twenty-one physicians and six surgeons, composed of the following: E. E. Marey, M. D., C. E. Blumenthal, M. D., B. F. Joslin, M. D., W. J. Bauer, M. D., W. H. White, M. D., Louis Hallock, M. D., T. F. Allen, M. D., J. W. Dowling, M. D., Egbert Guernsey, M. D., E. P. Fowler, M. D., Geo. E. Belcher, M. D., S. P. Burdick, M. Surgeons: W. Tod Helmuth, M. D., John C. Minor, M. D., J. H. Thompson, M. D., F. E. Doughty, M. D., T. D. Bradford, M. D., C. T. Liebold, M. D.

After the transfer of the property and interests of the other organizations to the Hahnemann, it was decided to continue the Hospital at 213 West 54th street, and proceed to the erection, as soon as possible, of an administration building on the lots leased to the Hahnemann.

LADIES' HAHNEMANN HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION.

A new Ladies' Association was established by the Board of Trustees, with Mrs. Jonathan Sturgess as Honorary President, Mrs. Gordon W. Burnham, President, and the following Vice Presidents: Mrs. Parke Godwin, Mrs. Robert L. Stuart, Mrs. Walter S. Gurnee, Mrs. C. F. Chickering, Mrs. A. T. Stewart, Mrs. Salem H. Wales, Mrs. Josiah M. Fiske, Mrs. W. M. Kingsland; Treasurer, Mrs. William Hegeman; Secretary, Mrs. E. G. Bartlett.

Executive Committee: Mrs. W. H. Neilson, Mrs. W. H. White, Mrs. Samuel Swan, Mrs. C. F. Chickering, Mrs. Josiah M. Fiske, Mrs. Salem H. Wales, Mrs. E. Guernsey, Mrs. Clarke Bell, Mrs. Bainbridge Clark.

The corner stone of the new edifice, the main building of the present hospital, was laid on Oct. 25, 1876, with Masonic ceremonies. In the absence of Mr. Orton, the President, on account of sickness, Sinclair Tousey, one of the Vice Presidents, presided. Addresses were made on this occasion by William Cullen Bryant and Rev. William M. Taylor, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle.

OPENING NEW BUILDING.

The building was completed in October, 1878, and on the last day of that month was opened to the public. An historical address was delivered by Salem H. Wales on that occasion, who had succeeded Mr. Orton as President on the latter's death, in April, 1878. Addresses were also made by Chauncey M. Depew, Drs. Helmuth, Guernsey and Dowling.

The following were the officers and Trustees at the time of the opening of the new building to the public on Oct. 31st, 1878 :

President, Salem H. Wales.

Vice-Presidents, Hiram Calkins, Sinclair Tousey

Secretary, Roger H. Lyons.

Treasurer, John T. Willets.

The other Trustees were, William H. Wickham, Oliver H. Palmer, Henry Hilton, S. B. H. Vance, Edmund Dwight, Richard A. Storrs, Charles Stewart Smith, Gordon W. Burnham, B. R. McAlpin, Wheeler H. Peckham, W. A. Ogden Hegeman, Frederick A. Conkling, George W. Clarke, J. M. Bundy, Josiah M. Fiske, William Radde, Joseph Thompson, Stephen S. Hoe.

The following comprised the Medical Board : Physicians E. E. Marcy, Lewis Hallock, C. E. Blumenthal, Wm. H. White, Egbert Guernsey, B. F. Joslin, W. J. Bauer, Geo. E. Belcher, J. W. Dowling, T. F. The officers of the Ladies' Hahnemann Hospital Association were the same as at the time of the consolidation of the Hospitals.

Soon after the opening of the hospital building, Mr. Robert L. Stuart, Mr. Alexander T. Stewart and Mr. Henry Hilton contributed $10,000 each toward its support.

The following ladies furnished several rooms prior to the opening of the new building : Mrs. Jonathan Sturges, Mrs. Horace F. Clark, Mrs. Frederick Halsey, Mrs. Daniel S. Miller, Mrs. Clark Bell, Mrs. N. A. Moseman, Mrs. J. S. Bennett, Mrs. A. T. Garner, Mrs. Edward Spaulding.

A fair was held in Madison Square Garden in the Spring of 1880, at which a large sum was raised, but resulted in a disaster in the falling of walls at the entrance and the untimely death of Mrs. Anna Bradford Hegeman.

There have been numerous changes in the Trustees and medical staff since that period. In 1887 there was a complete reorganization of the Medical Staff and change of its personnel, dividing it into departments of Attending Physicians, Attending Surgeons and Consulting Staff.

The Medical Staff was then made to consist of the following :

Attending Physicians : L. L. Danforth, M. D., J. M. Schley, M. D., S. J. Donaldson, M. D., J. McE. Wetmore, M. D., N. A. Mosman, M. D., Wm. H. White, M. D.

A new arrangement was also made in reference to the term of service of each; two physicians and one surgeon on duty at the same time, serving for two months and then alternating.

MERGING OF WESTERN DISPENSARY WITH THE HAHNEMANN.

In 1889 a proposition was made by those connected with the Western Dispensary to merge its interest in the Hahnemann Hospital, and transfer its property to the latter. This finally culminated in an agreement to consolidate the two interests, the Hahnemann Hospital agreeing to use the funds received from The Western Dispensary in the erection of a new wing to the Hospital, to be devoted to Maternity cases and to maintain it as such for twenty years. An act was passed by the Legislature of 1892 authorizing the consolidation and the merging of the Western Dispensary into the Hahnemann Hospital. A number of the trustees of the former were elected to the Hahnemann Board. By this consolidation there were transferred from the Western Dispensary to the treasury of the Hahnemann Hospital, about $34,000. The article of agreement was prepared by Robert W. Gilbert and duly executed by the officers of both corporations.

The construction of a fire proof Maternity wing was commenced as soon as the plans could be made and completed in 1894, at a cost of $68,000, including the new boiler and boiler house, necessary for heating the enlarged Hospital Buildings. It was formally opened to the public on December 18th, 1894, and was duly commemorated by appropriate exercises. Mr. Hiram Calkins, the President presided, and appropriate addresses were made by Rev. Charles H. Thompson, pastor of The Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and General Howard Carroll. A tablet was also erected to Dr. and Mrs. Egbert Guernsey, who were instrumental in building up The Western Dispensary which was the foundation of the Guernsey maternity of the Hahnemann Hospital. This building has proven to be a valuable addition to the Hospital.

The Medical Staff at the time of the opening of the Maternity wing was composed of the following :

OFFICERS SINCE ORGANIZATION OF HOSPITAL.

Five persons have held the position of President of the Hahnemann Hospital since its organization and seven persons the position of Treasurer.

Hiram Calkins was the first President, holding that office from 1869 to the consolidation with the Surgical Hospital in May, 1875, when William Orton, then President of the Western Union Telegraph Company was elected, holding the position until his death in April, 1878; Salem H. Wales was elected as his successor and served until the winter of 1881 when he resigned and in May following Oliver H. Palmer, one of the officers of the Mutual Life Insurance Company was selected by the Board of Trustees in his place. He continued as President until his death in January, 1884, when Thomas Hillhouse, President of the Metropolitan Trust Company was elected as his successor. Mr. Hillhouse remained President until the annual meeting of the Board of Saleswoman's Room.

Trustees in May, 1890, when he resigned, owing to the increased demand on his time by his business, and Hiram Calkins was unanimously elected as his successor and re-elected each year since.

The first Treasurer of the Hospital was John Davidson, at that time President of the Manufacturers' and Builders Bank. He served the Hospital in that capacity until the consolidation of the Hospital in 1875, when Charles P. Leverich was elected to that position; he soon after resigned on account of ill health, when Josiah Macy, Jr., succeeded him, Mr. Macy died in October, 1876 when John T. Willets was elected in his place. Mr. Willets resigned in 1886 when Isaac S. Platt became Treasurer, serving for one year, and was succeeded by Birdseye Blakeman, a prominent book publisher; he served until May, 1891 when Willis B. Marvin was chosen to succeed him. Resigning in 1893, Mr. John Davidson was elected to succeed him and still holds the position of Treasurer.

The first Secretary was H. C. Brown, who was succeeded by Roger H. Lyon when the consolidation with the Surgical Hospital took place; serving until 1887, when W. A. Ogden Hegeman was selected, holding the position for one year and was succeeded by William J. Swan, who held the position until the merging of the Western Dispensary with the Hahnemann Hospital, when Samuel J. Drake was elected serving until May, 1899: on his resignation Edgar Harriott was elected to the position.

During thirty years of the existence of the Hahnemann several prominent citizens have served on the Board of Trustees whose names are not included in the lists enumerated as being members at stated periods. Some of these are dead, others resigned. Among them were Roswell P. Flower, Francis H. Tows, David Dows, W. F. Cochran, James E. Leviness, Robert W. Gilbert, Anderson Fowler, Henry H. Bridgman, A. B. Darling, Charles F. Chickering, C. P. Huntington and Jason Hinman.

There have been eight Presidents of the Ladies' Aid Association; Mrs. C. E. Vanderveer was the first, serving for one year, when Mrs. Cornelia Roosevelt was elected, who held that position until 1875, when Mrs. Gordon W. Burnham was selected after the consolidation with the Surgical Hospital. Mrs. Burnham died on October 5, 1883, and was succeeded by Mrs. Alonzo B. Cornell; she in turn was succeeded by Mrs. John F. Dillon, who held the position for one year, when Mrs. Chauncy M. Depew became the President of the Association in May, 1886, and filled that office until her death in May, 1892. Miss Mary Laidlie Dey was then selected as her successor filling that position until 1896 when, on her resignation, Mrs. Howard Carroll was elected, and is still the President of the Association. All who have held the position of President of the Ladies' Aid Association previous to Miss Dey are dead, Mrs. Dillon being one of the unfortunates who were lost on the steamship La Bourgoyne.

There have been three Treasurers of the Ladies' Aid Association, Mrs. Richard A. Storrs being the first until the consolidation with the Surgical Hospital when she was succeeded by Mrs. William Hegeman, who resigned in May, 1892. Mrs. J. Hull Browning was then elected Treasurer, and still holds the position.

The first Secretary of the Ladies' Association was Mrs. R. C. Hutchings, who was succeeded by Miss C. L. Peet, serving one year, when Mrs. E. G. Bartlett was elected. She filled that position until May, 1893, and on her resignation Mrs. J. K. Hayward was chosen. The latter resigned in 1896 and Mrs. Elpahalet Nott Anable was selected and still holds the position.

AN APPEAL TO THE CHARITABLE PUBLIC.

The First year of the existence of the Hahnemann Hospital in its modest quarters, it treated seventy-one patients and gave them 2,463 days support. All but three of them were free.

Since it first opened its doors in 1869 it has cared for or administered to the ailments of 20,046 patients. The largest porportion were free. In accomplishing this work, the managers have had no financial aid from either the City or State, except a small sum from the excise fund during three or four years of its earlier existence.

The administering to the wants of that number of patients, the construction and equipment of the present buildings have been accomplished by their own efforts, aided by their friends, by the generosity of the charitable people interested in Homeopathy; by fairs, entertainments, contributions, donations and bequests. It has accumulated a free bed fund of $118,724.14 only the interest of which can be used for current expenses. The Hospital is out of debt, no mortgages or liens upon its property.

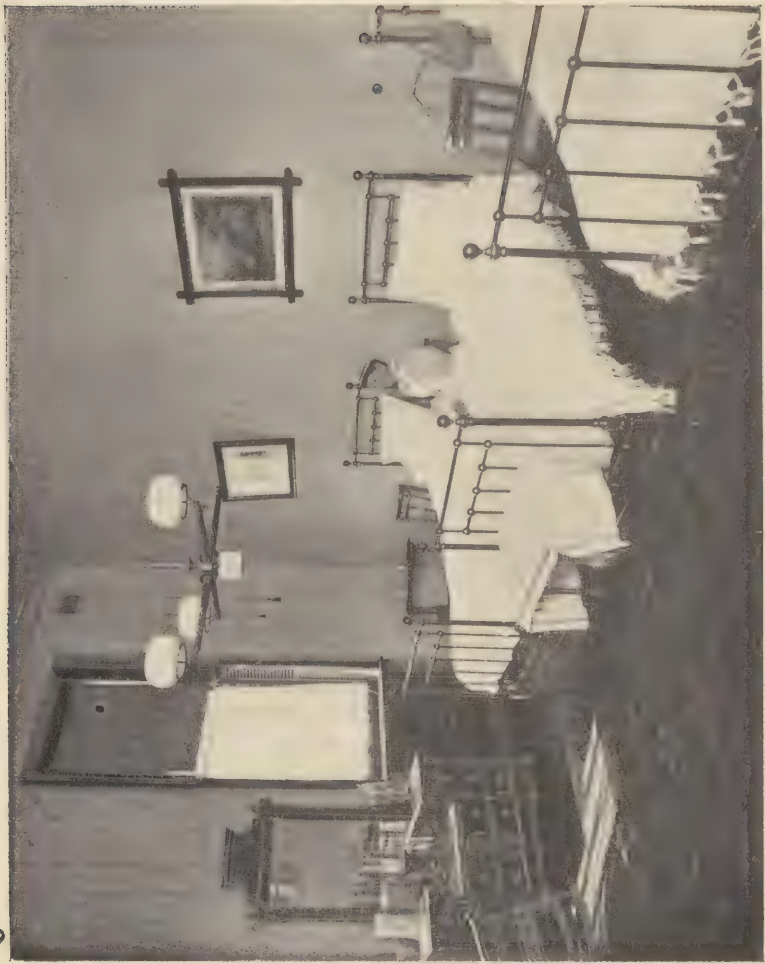

With prudence and economy its trustees and managers have thus far succeeded in its maintainance, providing for improvements from the amount received from interest, contributions, donations and receipts from paying patients. The demands for accommodations are increasing beyond their ability to meet them. An additional building is required for the nurses in order that the rooms now occupied by them may be devoted to the care and treatment of patients.

The private rooms for pay patients are not sufficient to meet the demands for those who apply at the Hospital for admission. It is the paramount duty to the extent of their ability to provide for the sick poor. An increase in the number of free patients adds to the cost of maintenance. The officers of the Hospital believe that they would not be true to the proper administration of their trust unless they placed before the benevolent and charitable people of this city the necessity for additional means to carry out and enlarge the usefulness of the Hospital. In order to effectively accomplish its great mission and keep pace with the demands upon it, they must be upheld by willing hearts and liberal hands.

To all such the officers and managers of the Hahnemann appeal with abiding faith, that as they point to the record of efficient work of the institution, there will be a response equal to the requirments and necessities of their charity.

It has been wisely said that :

“There are two ways through life to eternity, which smooth the path and shorten the distance—for the poor it is patience—for the rich it is charity.”
